Why attend CEER Training Courses?

“

Good regulation requires energy regulators to have both the powers and resources to carry out their work effectively. Capacity-building and investing in professional development are powerful tools to strengthen regulatory performance.

Garrett Blaney,
CEER President

The CEER Training Academy's courses deliver job-related skills for staff of regulatory authorities across all levels, from introductory to advanced. Our modular approach in designing the course programme supports over time the development of professional expertise in energy regulation, covering wholesale market, network and retail/consumer issues. Designed around European practices, the courses also allow for the sharing of regulatory experience and approaches more broadly.

Our lecturers come primarily from the regulators and also include international institutions, academia and energy industry professionals. The course programme is advised by distinguished members of our Training Academy Advisory Board, comprising senior representatives from the European institutions, academia, energy industry and former regulators.
